Dear Mr. Dulles:

The Defense Communications System (DCS) has recently been established to provide facilities to meet all long-haul telecommunications requirements of the Department of Defense with certain specified exceptions. The Defense Communications System includes world-wide Government owned and leased, point-to-point circuits, terminals, control facilities and tributaries. The Defense Communications Agency (DCA) is the agency under the direction, authority and control of the Secretary of Defense charged with the operation and control of the DCS.

In anticipation that communications matters of mutual interest may arise from time to time, it would be helpful to us to have a point or office of contact within the Central Intelligence Agency. If you agree I would appreciate being notified of the name of the office or person so designated.

Sincerely yours,

WM. D. IRVIN
